

Sutherland Caragana

Peashrub Tree Form

(Caragana arborescens 'Sutherland')

A unique upright form and an excellent choice for adding a dynamic look to the landscape when used in screens and hedges due to its low canopy. Pea-like yellow flowers bloom on the previous year's wood and hang below the branches in the spring, fruit is not ornamental or significant. The leaves are pinnately compound and light green throughout the growing season, turning yellow in the fall. The bark is smooth and olive-green. Adaptable to a range of soil types, it is salt, drought, and urban pollution tolerant.
